DEFENDANT MAURIELLO'S COUNTERCLAIMS AGAINST PLAINTIFF SCHOOLCRAFT FOR TORTIOUS INTERFERENCE WITH MAURIELLO'S EMPLOYMENT RELATIONSHIP AND PRIMA FACIE TORT

1. This Court has supplemental jurisdiction over Defendant Mauriello's counterclaims pursuant to 28 U.S.C. section 1367(a) as the counterclaims are so related to plaintiff's claims as to form part of the same case or controversy under Article III of the United States Constitution.

2. The counterclaims seek recovery from plaintiff Adrian Schoolcraft in his individual capacity for the damage suffered by Steven Mauriello as a result of plaintiff's tortious interference with Mauriello's employment relationship with the New York City Police Department (NYPD), and as a result of plaintiff's prima facie tort, willfully and maliciously engaging in conduct whose sole purpose was to damage the career and reputation of Steven Mauriello, thus causing him to suffer financial losses, while providing undeserved and improper support for the unfounded claims of revenge plaintiff intended to assert, and has asserted, against the City of New York and the NYPD.

3. On October 7, 2009, in a telephone conversation with his father, Larry Schoolcraft, while the plaintiff was on his way to his first meeting with members of the New York City Police Department Quality Assurance Division (QAD), plaintiff and his father discussed their plan for what plaintiff should tell QAD. The plan they agreed upon was as follows:

i) plaintiff would falsely complain to QAD of routine downgrading of crime at the 81st Precinct without revealing to QAD he was doing so purely for the sake of getting revenge against Mauriello – the expressed goal being to “fuck [Mauriello] over,” and without revealing that plaintiff himself had intentionally contributed to the incidence of improper crime reporting to try to make a more compelling showing of wrongdoing at the 81st Precinct; apparently plaintiff and his father were seeking revenge against Mauriello because Mauriello signed off on plaintiff’s 2008 evaluation, in which plaintiff received a sub-standard rating; they hoped that by their false accusations Mauriello would be terminated as the “scapegoat” for the intentional downgrading of crime in the NYPD; plaintiff failed to reveal to QAD, at the initial meeting or at any time thereafter, that he had recorded countless hours of conversation at the 81st Precinct for a period of three years or more, and that the recordings did not provide any support for plaintiff’s accusations of improper crime reporting; and

ii) plaintiff would do his best to influence QAD to find downgrading of crime had occurred in the 81st Precinct, not only so Mauriello would be sanctioned, but also to thereby create support for the claims plaintiff was planning to assert in a lawsuit he intended to bring against the NYPD; in that lawsuit, plaintiff would improperly allege, without foundation, as he has since alleged in this case, that he received a sub-standard evaluation because of his failure to comply with unlawful quotas, which he would falsely allege, and has alleged, existed in the 81st Precinct.

4. Plaintiff and his father also reveal in the October 7, 2009, conversation, which plaintiff recorded, that plaintiff should, and he ultimately did, deceive QAD about plaintiff’s motives by falsely explaining to QAD that he had taken it upon himself to gather information about purported wrongdoing in the NYPD because he was concerned about the safety of the people in the community as well as the safety of police officers. In fact, neither sentiment was true.

5. In clear contradiction of those sentiments, plaintiff reveals while speaking to his father that “ain’t nobody my friend” in the NYPD, and if any fellow officers in the NYPD were to suffer any consequences as a result of what plaintiff intended to report to QAD, “they asked for it” because “none of these guys came to my aid when [the NYPD was] coming at me.”

6. Plaintiff also expressed an even more stark contradiction of the sentiments he planned to express and did falsely express to QAD about his purported concern for the predominantly minority community served by the 81st precinct. In response to an inaudible question from his father, apparently about whether one or more officers with whom plaintiff had worked would be supportive of plaintiff, plaintiff told his father the other officers and he “just worked together so we wouldn’t have to work with any niggers.”

7. Thus, plaintiff held himself out to QAD and all others, including the NYPD Internal Affairs Bureau (IAB), members of the press, and the public generally, under extremely false pretenses for the purpose not of protecting his fellow officers or the rights of the residents of the Bedford Stuyvesant community, but for the purpose of getting revenge against Steven Mauriello -- interfering in his employment relationship with the NYPD, and otherwise trying to destroy his career and reputation – while also creating false support for plaintiff’s lawsuit against the NYPD.

8. With respect to plaintiff’s false accusations that illegal quotas were imposed by Steven Mauriello and that plaintiff’s failure to comply with them was the basis for his sub-standard evaluation, plaintiff had surreptitiously recorded roll calls and other conversations in the 81st Precinct for perhaps three years or longer, and he secretly recorded the meetings he requested with his union delegate and his supervising officers from the 81st Precinct with respect to his appeal of his 2008 evaluation. Yet, there is no evidence that unlawful quotas actually were imposed on plaintiff or anyone else or played any part in plaintiff's evaluation. The accusations are false and were maliciously made by plaintiff, and continue to be made by him, to cause Mauriello undeserved harm and to provide plaintiff with false support for his unfounded claims.

9. With respect to plaintiff's false accusation that the 81st Precinct rampantly engaged in the downgrading of serious crime for which Mauriello inevitably would be blamed, again, plaintiff's surreptitious recordings do not provide any support for this accusation. The documents plaintiff secretly accumulated also show nothing more than the incidental occurrence of incorrect crime reporting. Moreover, only one such incident involved Mauriello. Plaintiff, on the other hand, played a direct role in causing at least three incidents of grand larceny and burglary, reported directly to him, to be recorded instead as lost property, and causing at least three other incidents of crime not to be recorded at all. In other words, plaintiff reported thirteen incidents of improper crime reporting for the entire precinct over a period of a year or more, while he alone was responsible for six such incidents during that same period. Apparently, plaintiff's goal was that the victims he mishandled would later return to the 81st Precinct, and in some instances it appears he reached out to them to do so, to complain that their reports were not taken or not followed up, thus making it appear that the 81st Precinct was engaged in a pattern of not properly reporting crime.

10. Plaintiff dishonestly reported to QAD that the eleven instances he identified where a crime report was improperly downgraded, plus two additional incidents reported in the press and attributed to plaintiff, were only a small sample of such downgrading in the 81st Precinct, when, in fact, plaintiff did not know of any other instances, and actually knew or should have known that incorrect crime reporting only rarely occurred in the 81st Precinct. Indeed, it was later independently determined, after a thorough scrutiny of the 81st Precinct's records, that of more than 1100 crime reports prepared in the 81st Precinct over a period of approximately one year, only approximately two percent had been incorrectly classified – a total of 23, which was consistent with the City-wide average and far better than several other precincts throughout the City. Despite the performance of the 81st Precinct with respect to the classification of crimes, it and, in particular, Steve Mauriello, became the target of ridicule in some media due to plaintiff's unfounded and exaggerated criticism, his manipulation of the records, the bizarre events of October 31, 2009, and the sensationalized and apparently selective release of the recordings plaintiff had made in the 81st Precinct.

11. Steven Mauriello had de minimus involvement in the events of October 31, 2009, which are the principal subject of plaintiff's complaint, and did not engage in any of the alleged wrongdoing specified in the complaint, having been present in plaintiff's apartment only briefly. Yet, plaintiff has named Mauriello as a defendant in furtherance of his attempt to get revenge on Mauriello and to build on that effort by trying to taint the NYPD's actions on October 31, 2009, as being motivated by Mauriello's purported desire to retaliate against plaintiff for communicating with QAD and IAB.

12. There is no evidence that anyone acted out of a desire to retaliate against plaintiff on October 31, 2009. Instead, they acted out of a desire to prevent plaintiff from doing harm to himself and others. There is substantial reason to believe, on the other hand, that plaintiff's conduct on October 31, 2009, much of it revealed by surreptitious recordings made by plaintiff himself, was designed to provoke a response by the NYPD that plaintiff hoped to be able to point to as an act of retaliation in the lawsuit he had already planned to bring against the NYPD. It was a sinister, cynical and malicious effort by plaintiff and his father that has resulted in this action being brought before this Court.

13. As a result of the foregoing wrongful conduct by plaintiff, Steven Mauriello has suffered damage to his career and reputation, his employment relationship with the NYPD has suffered, he will continue to suffer financial losses in the future, he has undeservedly suffered public humiliation and scorn, and has been caused to suffer extreme emotional distress.

14. Plaintiff's conduct represents a high degree of immorality and shows such wanton dishonesty as to imply a criminal indifference to his civil obligations. Plaintiff acted with the intent to do harm to Steven Mauriello, and in doing so demonstrated a conscious indifference and utter disregard not only for the rights of Mauriello, but others as well.

15. Based upon the foregoing, Steven Mauriello is entitled to compensatory damages in an amount to be determined at trial, but not less than two million dollars, and punitive damages in an amount to be determined at trial, but not less than two million dollars.

WHEREFORE, defendant Steven Mauriello requests judgment dismissing the claims alleged against him in the Second Amended Complaint in their entirety, imposing liability against plaintiff on defendant Mauriello's counterclaims, awarding damages of two million dollars on each of the counterclaims, awarding punitive damages of two million dollars, and granting such other relief to defendant Mauriello as the Court deems just, together with an award of costs.
